TO PROVIDE SOCIAL SECURITY FOR CLERGYMEN

ISSUE SOCIAL SECURITY REGULATION FOR CLERGY -- Sarajevo, Oslobođenje, 26 May 51

Belgrade, 24 May -- The federal government of Yugoslavia has issued a regulation on social security for clergy. Clergy of an acknowledged religion can be socially insured if the chief administrative agency of the individual church has concluded an agreement on this with the federal Council for Public Health and Social Policy. Clergy will then be treated as representatives of religious associations.

Clergy and their families are thus entitled to free health protection and material security during time of illness. In case of permanent disability, they are entitled to sick, old age, and family pension, to material help for their children, and to maintenance.

All clergy will fall into social security classifications which receive a minimum of 2,500 to a maximum of 4,400 dinars monthly.

They discussed instituting social security for members of farm work cooperatives. They agreed on old-age-pension insurance and pensions for sickness incurred in course of work. A commission was selected to work out the necessary details for instituting such social security.
